P R E S I D E N T - L A J U A N A G I L L E T T E

It ain't over til it's over! I still have hope.

Like you, I was disappointed with the results of the election in Arizona. There will be some contesting, probably with legal action because there was so much that was suspicious on Election Day, machines that quit working, no ink in the printers and long, long lines. Many people gave up and went home without waiting to vote. We can't forget the young voters who have been brain washed by our school system. And of course, the elephant in the room, the person who supposedly won was in charge of the elections! All of this leads me and I'm sure many others to doubt the election as being fair.

The good news is that we have control of the House. And it looks like the Republicans are going to do something about the run-away spending of the Democrats.

It is yet to be seen what the new House will do about Hunter Biden and Joe Biden. Maybe at last there will be an accounting for all that this family has done with China to harm the United States.

God bless America

CORRESPONDING SECRETARY

Fall is here and the weather is wonderful! Those of us who suffer through the summer in Havasu are loving it! I sent cards to Dave Ira, Brian Kreft and Diane Huenerbein following their surgeries. All are doing good. Steve and I have both been hit with some form of Covid but are over it now except for the exhaustion that seems to follow. I hope you all have a wonderful Thanksgiving with family and friends.

Who are the real climate science deniers?

In May 2015 and July 2021, the British medical journal The Lancet published studies that analyzed millions of deaths in numerous countries over recent decades and found that cooler temperatures killed nine times (July 2021 study) to seventeen times (May 2015 study) more people than warmer temperatures.

The upshot is that rather than being the "existential threat" that Joe Biden claims, the planet's slight warming (1.01 degrees Celsius on average since 1880, as calculated by NASA) has been saving millions of lives.

Biden, John Kerry, Al Gore, and other apostles of climate doom do not take account of this critical climate science point. Who are the real climate science deniers?

The University of Oxford has presented data from EM-DAT - The International Disaster Database that shows that since 1920, even as world population has quadrupled and the earth has warmed, the number of people killed each year by natural disasters has declined by over 90 percent.

The climate doomsters skip over this point too. Who are the real climate science deniers?

And then there are the Chicken Little claims about hurricanes, fires, and rising sea levels. The facts show they are nonsense.

On hurricanes, "there is essentially no long-term trend in hurricane counts. The evidence for an upward trend is even weaker if we look at U.S. landfalling hurricanes, which even show a slight negative trend beginning from 1900 or from the late 1800s."

That is from a National Oceanic

DAVID M. SIMON

and Atmospheric Administration report, updated on October 3, 2022, that sums it up in bold: "We conclude that the historical Atlantic hurricane data at this stage do not provide compelling evidence for a substantial greenhouse warming-induced century-scale increase in: frequency of tropical storms, hurricanes, or major hurricanes, or in the proportion of hurricanes that become major hurricanes."

On fires, facts from the Journal of Geophysical Research: Biogeosciences, Remote Sensing of Environment, and Earth's Future, presented by environmental statistician and former Greenpeace member Bjorn Lomborg, show that the percentage of global land burned per year in 1905 through 2021 declined.

And on sea levels, these are the facts from an Environmental Protection Agency report updated on August 1, 2022: "When averaged over all of the world's oceans, absolute sea level has risen at an average rate of 0.06 inches per year from 1880 to 2013," including a slightly increased rate since 1993 of "0.12 to 0.14 inches per year." The recent increased rate is only a single foot in 84 to 96 years.

Who are real climate science deniers?

Unlike the doomsters, careful climate scientists know that global warming presents nothing to warrant concern.

In "Unsettled: What Climate Science Tells Us, What It Doesn't, and Why It Matters," Obama Department of Energy Under Secretary for Science Steven Koonin shows that the United Nations climate models that the doomsters use to predict future global temperatures are so speculative and unreliable that they have been unable even to reproduce the 20th century's temperature changes.

Far better guidance is found in a 2017 statement signed by over 300 scientists, including Richard Lindzen of MIT and William Happer of Princeton: "Observations [over the last] 25 years ... show that warming from increased atmospheric CO2 will be benign."

Their statement also makes this key point: "Carbon dioxide is not a pollutant. To the contrary, there is clear evidence that increased atmospheric carbon dioxide is environmentally helpful to food crops and other plants that nourish all life. It is plant food, not poison." All of us humans, of course, also exhale carbon dioxide with every breath. Biden, Kerry, Gore, and other climate doomsters demonize as "climate deniers" those who disagree or do not endorse their destructive pursuit of command and control of the U.S. economy. They have no shame. They are the real climate science deniers.

S P O T L I G H T M E M B E R : J A N B O Y D

I grew up in a sunny beach town in Redondo Beach, CA. I worked all through High School at an Italian Deli, and graduated in 1981 from RUHS. I did not go to college right away, instead I went to work at a Bank and then later at TRW Aero Space Corp.

Had my 1st marriage in 1986 and two daughters later in 1989 and 1991. We traveled around with his work to France and Australia then landed back in the USA where I went to school and became a Hair Stylist. It was a good fit because I could manage my hours around the girls schooling. The marriage lasted 24 years, I always knew it was not going to make the long haul.

In came Ted Boyd and we have been together 13 years, married for 6 years. We went to the same High School and in fact he almost asked me to his Prom. I said almost right! Well, he missed the mark on that one and we often wonder what if?

We are together now so I guess it worked out, but what would our children have been like?

Life in California was one where we thought we would never leave; we had the sunshine and the Beach. But after Covid, it took a downturn and we thought 'let's get out of here'. Being Patriotic Republicans, it seemed as though LHC would be a great fit for us. Ted had been here to the Lake many times and it was a place he wanted to retire. It didn't take much to convince me, so we moved to LHC in 2019; we Love it here. Being water people, we still have the lake and its not as crowded as California is.

Ted is the one who is Politically involved and has his hands in several areas. I was not involved in politics in California, but I always voted Republican. While I'm not as involved as Ted, I do enjoy learning more and more about our Political Issues as a London Bridge Republican Woman. Ted is the President of the Men's club and currently the Director of Education for MCRCC. He usually always accompanies me to the LBRW meetings.

I decided to work almost as soon as we moved here. I work at the Lake Havasu Marina and maybe you have seen me there checking you into your boat slip or selling you a nice cold drink. If so, please say 'hello'!

Tue, Nov 15, 2022 • Denis Prager's Column

In a recent Fireside Chat — my weekly podcast for PragerU, half of which is dedicated to my taking questions from (mostly) young people around the world — a young man in his 20s asked how he was supposed to figure out who is telling the truth and who isn't. He was undoubtedly speaking for millions of his peers. Given the opposing positions one encounters on almost every issue, how is one supposed to figure out which position is right, and which one may not only be wrong, but a lie?

In addition to obvious suggestions — such as finding individuals and institutions whom you trust, studying both sides of issues, learning as much as possible and using common sense — I offered what may be the single most important indicator of who is more likely to be lying.

It is not a perfect indicator of who is telling the truth — there is no perfect indicator — but it comes close.

With rare exceptions, the party that calls for censorship is lying. People who tell the truth can deal with dissent and different opinions. In fact, truth-tellers welcome debate.

If this theory is correct — and I cannot imagine a valid argument against it — it means that in virtually every instance of a Left-Right difference, the Left is lying.

There is no important area of left-right difference in which the Left — not liberals; the Left — does not call for shutting down dissent.

Take the university. Everyone knows how difficult it is for a visiting speaker to offer non-left-wing views on a college campus. Conservative speakers are often either not allowed to appear in the first place, canceled after being invited or shouted down while speaking.

That is an almost perfect indicator that the leftist ideas that dominate campuses are false.

Now let's take another example, an area that until very recently one might have said is the very home of truth — science, specifically medical science.

The left-wing California State Assembly recently passed a bill, signed into law by California's left-wing governor and approved by the state's left-wing medical establishment, that any California physician who spreads "medical misinformation" or "disinformation" could lose his or her medical license.

Now, why was this law passed? Was there, for the first time in California history, some outbreak of doctors "misinforming" their patients about medical matters, thereby causing them harm?

Of course not.

The law was passed to stifle all medical dissent on issues related to COVID-19.

So now, any physicians who suggest that patients in the early stages of COVID-19 might benefit from taking hydroxychloroquine or ivermectin (both along with zinc) could lose their medical license. Even if these drugs were completely useless in preventing serious illness or death in COVID-19 patients — and many reputable doctors around the world believe they are indeed effective — these drugs are among the safest medications in the world. Both are on the World Health Organization's list of the most essential drugs in the world. There was no scientific or moral justification for threatening the licenses of doctors who prescribed them for COVID-19.

There are, however, two primary explanations for the medical establishment's ban on doctors prescribing or merely speaking well of these two therapeutics. One is that former President Donald Trump promoted hydroxychloroquine as a potential lifesaver, and if he promoted anything, the Left opposed it — even if it could save lives. The other is that if these therapeutics were acknowledged to work, the vaccinations would be rendered largely unnecessary and Pfizer, Moderna and Johnson & Johnson would lose a great deal of money. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, National Institutes of Health and state medical boards essentially work for Big Pharma.

Based on the rule that those who censor are almost always lying, we must come to the frightening conclusion that the American medical establishment has been lying to us. That includes the American Medical Association, the American Psychiatric Association and the Association of Children's Hospitals along with the American Association of Pediatricians. The latter two advocate, almost alone in the world, "affirmative" transgender care, such as puberty blockers in minors and mastectomies on perfectly healthy girls who say they are boys.

In its suppression of scientific dissent, the American medical establishment mimics the medieval Church's treatment of Galileo.

The Left — in medicine, Big Tech, the mainstream media and in schools from kindergarten through graduate school — not only censors anyone who denies that "men give birth," but smears their reputations, labeling them as haters, bigots, "anti-science" and inducers of teen suicide.

Truth is a liberal value, and it is a conservative value. It has never been a left-wing value. From Vladimir Lenin and the Communist Party to the contemporary university, the Left has always suppressed dissent.

And for good reason. If dissent is allowed, the Left loses its power.

And the Left knows it. Colleges know that one conservative speaker can undo four years of indoctrination in 90 minutes. And the medical establishment knows that a few dissenting physicians can undo its entire credibility.

That was my response to the young person who wanted to know which side is lying: the one that censors and suppresses dissent.

The Left.
