Complaining, complaining, complaining, I'm sick of it, from both sides. Some people just don't know a good thing when they see it. Do you recall I said it is likely to get worse before it gets better? We are at the beginning of worse. I'm sorry for those of you that have to pull money out of your investments to live on and maybe, like me you missed opportunities to sell stocks at their highs. I'm fortunate in that I don't have to take my first RMD until next April, but I plan to pull funds when the stocks are higher than now sometime this calendar year. I've lost as much as 25% of my ROTH, but that is only on paper and I don't plan to sell those stocks any time soon.

If you have ever done restoration on anything from furniture to a whole building or house, or even yourself, you know it's ALWAYS uglier before it gets pretty. I have done many of those things, including refinishing a few pieces of furniture. I loved the idea of painting furniture and the end result, but I have to tell you, there were many times in the process that I thought I had lost my mind to even try it. There was one in particular that was by far my worst hobby experience though now maybe my favorite piece. The moral of the story is don't expect things to improve (financially and socially) soon. I think we've got a ways to go with the clean-up of our country. Some of the finance experts I listen to say the market will continue to go down but to not lose hope. But they also know that is an opportunity to pick up shares at lower prices. Tesla, for example.

On a brighter note, the pardons that Biden granted are being questioned. As I mentioned in my March article, if Biden was not in control of his faculties (and WE KNOW he wasn't) when granting those pardons, then they may not be valid. Pardons have been granted by kings even centuries ago, but always for specific crimes or acts, not as a broad handed "get/keep out of jail" pass. That too is being questioned for the Biden family and Fauci, in particular.

As I was reading my bible today I came across this verse that really resonated with me in conjunction with an interview I'd watched with Victor Davis Hanson about the loss of citizenship in this country, particularly during the Biden term when illegals were treated better than tax paying citizens:

Victor Davis Hanson Diagnoses the Dying Citizen (Mr. Hanson is a wonderfully intelligent speaker.)

Matthew 17: 24-When they came to Capernaum, those who collected the temple tax approached Peter and said, "Doesn't your teacher pay the temple tax?" "Yes", replied Peter. When he went into the house Jesus spoke to him first, "What do you think Simon? From whom do earthly kings collect tariffs or taxes? From their sons (insert citizens here) or from strangers?" "From strangers," he (Peter) said. Did you see that?!! Sons (citizens) do not pay the tax, strangers do. Now you may understand why Trump wants to set tariffs for other countries and work at removing tax on citizens and remove benefits from non citizens? All right, I'm preaching to the choir here, I know. But most Americans do not realize Federal and State income taxes were not from the beginning of this country or meant to be a permanent thing. Prior to that funds to run the federal government were obtained by tariffs, with income taxes collected after major wars (ie Civil War, etc.) and stopped when the bills were paid.

So, it's gonna be tough for a while, but hang in there. We will get our country back to what our founding fathers intended. And I believe God's purpose in blessing us that way is so we can continue to lead the lost to Christ. So go and serve your King (as Todd Friel says at the end of his podcast "Wretched" <https://www.youtube.com/@WretchedNetwork>).

LaJuana, who never wanted anyone to know her age, proudly celebrates her 90th birthday at our Feb. 3 meeting

SPOTLIGHT MEMBER – LINDA TOMBRELLO

Hello All,

I was born at the U.S. Naval Hospital in Corona, CA on April 8, 1956. I grew up in Southern California, primarily in the San Gabriel Valley. I have been married to my husband, Joe, since 1995 and this year we are blessed to be celebrating our 30 year anniversary! I have 2 daughters from my previous marriage who still live in California.

I began working for Southern California Gas Company in 1984. It was a wonderful company to work for back then and is where Joe and I met (like many other “Company Couples”). During my years at “The Gas Company” I held a variety of jobs that included clerical positions, customer service representative and I ended my career there as a Special Investigations Representative reporting to the Executive Office.

We initially started our River Life vacationing with friends and family in Laughlin, NV and boating at Lake Mohave. As time went by we got tired of spending money for hotel lodging and boat storage fees and ended up purchasing a vacation home in Lake Havasu City in 2007.

In 2016 The Tombrello’s decided it was time to retire! After retiring, we were able to spend more time in Arizona which allowed us to see all the community here had to offer. So in 2022, another decision was made! We sold our home in Covina, CA and became full time residents of Lake Havasu City, AZ!

After moving to LHC we have become very involved in the local Republican Party. I am currently a PC and State Committeeman and volunteer as the Assistant Office Manager at the LHC Republican Office. Also, this past January, Joe was elected as our Member at Large for Congressional District 9. We are getting ready for the next election cycle coming in 2026. We’ve got to get back to the values that made America Great and keep Arizona RED.

Lastly, the things I like to do? Spending time with my family (of course) and friends, reading, crafting, watching old movies, boating, off roading in our Razor, going to the beach, but traveling is my most recent passion! We spent 3 weeks in Italy 2 years ago and this summer we’re taking a European River cruise! My list keeps getting longer!

Council's Corner: Compliments of David Diaz

Greetings to all of the great patriotic members of the London Bridge Republican Women's Club. I've been very busy representing all of you since I was sworn in as your newest Lake Havasu City Council Member back on November 26.

There is much happening in our beautiful city and I want give everyone a brief overview of what's occurring now and coming up in the near future.

First a key national trend that affects LHC. As everyone knows we've just gone through a very successful election and all will be affected positively in Lake Havasu City with this new America First agenda. It's been reported that illegal border crossings are down over 90% since the January 20 inauguration. This slows down the negative affect that crime, illegal immigration encampments, lack of housing and pressure on law enforcement bring to all municipalities throughout our state. These negative pressures eventually bleed into LHC as well. Let's also not forget the pressure on our schools and hospitals due to overcrowding. Again, positive news for Arizona and Lake Havasu City.

We just conducted our annual City Council Retreat Planning Session. This is a day long meeting where we get a review of the past year's achievements and possible upcoming year's objectives from all Lake Havasu City Department Heads. This includes Police and Fire, City Attorney, City Magistrate, Public Works, Parks & Recreation, Building, Zoning & Code Enforcement, City Clerk and City Manager. We also hear from two third party entities that the city contracts with, P.E.D. (Partnership for Economic Development) and Go Lake Havasu (formerly Convention and Visitors Bureau). These presentations and the discussions that immediately followed as well as upcoming planned public meetings, will help us develop and construct the upcoming city budget. I look forward to being a part of this process.

The General Plan is reviewed and adopted every 10 years. The last update was ratified by the voters of LHC in 2016. So we are starting the process now of preparing for the 2026 LHC General Plan update.

We just agreed to a CMAR (contract management at risk) contract for the construction of Fire Station #7. This CMAR contract process protects the city from cost overruns during construction. The new Fire Station #7 will be located on the corner of McCulloch Ave. and Sloop St. Construction has been tentatively communicated to be completed by late 2026.

The construction of the new Downtown gathering place/park (currently called Downtown Catalyst) is moving along. This is tentatively scheduled to be completed in time for the Desert Storm event in April. There is a "name the park" contest currently going on and 4-5 final names have made the cut. Please go to LHCAZ.gov to provide your input.

At our last City Council meeting we updated the ordinance on how Council members can place items on future City Council meeting agendas. We made it easier by now only requiring a motion and a second to add future agenda items. This was the right thing to do for Council Members and LHC citizens.

For more detailed information on these updates and others, please visit LHCAZ.gov.

The City Council is here to represent you the citizens of our great city.

Best Regards,

David V. Diaz
Councilman
Lake Havasu City

School Board Update from LHUSD #1 Board President David Rose

Happy March to my fellow Republicans! I'm thrilled to update you on the significant strides we are making in the Lake Havasu Unified School District. At our recent board meeting, I introduced three essential policies that will safeguard our children and promote a positive learning environment.

As many of you know, President Donald Trump has called for the elimination of all Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) initiatives in our schools. In response, I proposed a No DEI policy, which passed its first reading with a unanimous 4-0 vote. This groundbreaking decision positions Lake Havasu Unified School District as the nation's first district to implement a comprehensive ban on DEI, ensuring our focus remains on academic excellence and traditional values.

Additionally, I presented a No Grooming Policy designed to protect our students from inappropriate interactions with adults during school hours. This policy prohibits discussions about sexuality and gender, creating a safer environment for our children. It also passed its first reading 4-0, reflecting our commitment to upholding the dignity and innocence of our youth.

The third policy I introduced addresses the use of restrooms, locker rooms, and facilities during overnight trips, explicitly prohibiting students from accessing spaces designated for the opposite sex. This crucial measure passed its first reading with a 4-0 vote, reinforcing our commitment to maintaining safety and respect within our schools.

As I write this update, I'm in my hotel room in Washington D.C., gazing out at our beautiful nation's capital. Crystal and I are deeply honored to have received a personal invitation to the White House, and we look forward to sharing our experiences with you.

I strongly encourage you to join us at our monthly school board meetings, held on the second Thursday of every month at 6:00 p.m. Your participation is vital as we work together to ensure the best outcomes for our children.

Together, let's make a difference!

*Sincerely,
David Rose
President
Lake Havasu Unified School District*

Do We Have 677 Unelected Presidents? By Clarice Feldman

There are almost 700 federal district court judges. I say "almost," because while officially there are 677 of them, some retired judges have taken senior status and may sit from time to time on cases, so the figure is inexact on any given day. Since President Trump was sworn in for a second term, there has been an avalanche of cases seeking relief from executive actions. Last month alone, district court judges issued 15 temporary restraining orders. "That's more nationwide injunctions than there were issued for the first three YEARS of the Biden Administration. District court judges are out of control."

A Temporary Restraining Order (TRO) is designed to maintain the status quo after a claim is made that there is an emergency requiring the court to maintain the matter in a holding pattern -- usually for 10-14 days -- until a hearing on the issue can be held. A TRO can be granted ex parte, that is with only the plaintiff being present and without a hearing on the issue at all. The plaintiff must show the likelihood of success on the merits of the claim and that the harm to him outweighs any potential harm to the opposing party. To get one, the plaintiff has to show the likelihood of irreparable injury if the court fails to act. After a hearing, the court may issue a Preliminary Injunction (PI) directing some action or continuing the initial restraint until a full trial on the matter is held. To obtain a PI that lasts throughout the course of litigation, the plaintiff must meet a higher standard of proof. "A TRO requires the applicant to show a substantial likelihood of success and immediate harm, while a preliminary injunction involves a more rigorous evaluation of the merits, balance of equities, and public interest."

There are 94 district courts and 12 federal courts of appeals, which hear and decide appeals from district courts. Generally, TROs are not appealable, but preliminary injunctions are. Some of the TROs issued against the administration read more like preliminary injunctions, and no matter how they are titled, if they do more than maintain the status quo for a short period, the appellate courts should step in and assert jurisdiction.

I agree with Bill Shipley: Most of these injunctions will not survive appeal:

I think SCOTUS is going to end up staying several of these, take up a small number, and then issue a small number of decisions that will force District Judges to reconsider and rethink their rulings. But they are unlikely to take a lot of these cases up individually to decide them on the merits. They will rely on district judges to change their decisions, and the Appeals Courts to smack down those who don't.

In fact, one just did.

Friday the Fourth Circuit smacked down a universal injunction. "On Friday, the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit reversed the much-covered nationwide injunction imposed by U.S. District Judge Adam Abelson in Baltimore regarding ending federal support for diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) programs. The three-judge panel ruled that Judge Abelson had gone "too far" in seeking to enjoin the federal government across the country.

The Fourth Circuit recognized that the executive orders "could raise concerns" about First Amendment rights that might have to be addressed down the road. However, it found Abelson's "sweeping block went too far." It also pointed out that the orders were not nearly as unlimited and sweeping as suggested by the district court or the media."

The more urgent question is, what right does a district court (which handles the matters in a designated geographic area) have to issue a nationwide injunction, and that matter is now being raised to the Supreme Court by the Administration in a case challenging the President's order on birthright citizenship which district court judges in Maryland, Massachusetts, and Washington have blocked nationwide.

According to Benjamin Weingarten:

"The Trump Administration is taking the fight to end universal injunctions to the Supreme Court. "...The government comes to this Court with a 'modest' request: while the parties litigate weighty merits questions, the Court should 'restrict the scope' of multiple preliminary injunctions that 'purpor[t] to cover every person * * * in the country,' limiting those injunctions to parties actually within the courts' power.... Universal injunctions have reached epidemic proportions since the start of the current Administration. Courts have graduated from universal preliminary injunctions to universal temporary restraining orders, from universal equitable relief to universal monetary remedies, and from governing the whole Nation to governing the whole world." "...This Court should declare that enough is enough before district courts' burgeoning reliance on universal injunctions becomes further entrenched."

Justice Neil Gorsuch has been critical of them and the Harvard Law Review notes how this practice politicizes the law:

"Morley said a single judge's power to enter a nationwide injunction incentivizes "extreme forum shopping," in which plaintiffs strategically bring their case in a specific court before a judge who will be most favorable to their arguments.

"There are outlier judges on all sides," he said. "You can go to that outlier judge and are systematically having the most controversial, cutting-edge, hot-button constitutional issues being settled and resolved by the ideological outliers rather than a more representative cross section of the judiciary."

In fact, the examination of nationwide injunctions published in the Harvard Law Review found that 92% were entered by judges appointed by Democratic presidents during the Trump administration. For the Biden administration, that portion grew to 100% imposed by judges named to the federal bench by Republican presidents.

"If you see that kind of pattern, it cannot help but call the judiciary into disrepute," said Nicholas Bagley, a law professor at the University of Michigan. "It doesn't look like they're applying the law in a clear way. It will erode the judiciary's legitimacy, no question about it."

Bagley, who testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee about these injunctions in 2020, pointed to one key factor behind their rise: Politics."

It's clear that the curtain must fall on the notion that hundreds of unelected district court judges of often outlying political beliefs and of various levels of judicial temperament and legal ability should be permitted to act as Chief Executive.
